

My philosophy

I believe that children all develop differently. I believe in supporting each child as they grow and develop physically, emotionally and socially. Developing a learning environment that is based on the children's interest to help them extend their own learning experiences. I believe that all children need to feel secure and safe in order to have the confidence to start exploring and developing.

I believe in having flexible routine in the children's day in order for them to feel settled and be able to emotionally prepare themselves for what is happening throughout their day.

I believe that children learn holistically through play and it is my role to support them during this time to encourage growth in all areas of their wellbeing. Through observing, reflecting and extending upon these play experiences I know that I am providing quality care for all children.

I recognise parents as the children's first and most influential teachers. I believe developing good communication and positive relationships with families to share knowledge and promote confident parenting.

I believe in reflecting on practices to commit to continuous personal improvement and help support my fellow peers with ongoing professional and personal development.

I believe in showing respect for all individuals' backgrounds and culture and incorporating it into our learning program to help promote diversity within the class room.
